Abstract A programme of study requires considered planning and preparation. Many factors influence the journey and impinge on the outcomes, but definable career goals emerge from the experience of producing scholarship and research to provide a platform for future employment. Be proactive during your phase of study to ensure your career develops intentionally and concurrently with the focus on educational activities, by engaging with technologies that define your identity for the future.

Summary Differentiate and disambiguate your identity by registering for an ORCID ID. Populate your ORCID profile with the publications and outputs you have authored that can be made publically available, and include your ORCID ID on each one to enable connectivity with other online systems, <http://orcid.org>.

Metrics are a measure of success. Altmetrics measure research impact in the media and are an indicator of the conversations occurring about your research. Use the Altmetric donut to showcase the influence and dissemination of your work. Download the Altmetric Bookmarklet to view the metrics of any output that has a Digital Object Identifier (DOI), www.altmetric.com.
