Subject: Thesis: Customary fisheries co-management within Aotearoa/New Zealand: fact or friction?

Philip Grimshaw, the author of a thesis titled: Customary fisheries co-management within Aotearoa/New Zealand: fact or friction?

has been contacted regarding the granting of permission for open access. He is unable to agree due to the intellectual property rights for some of the research material used, which belongs to his Ngai Tahu informants, who do not wish it to go beyond tribal boundaries. It is acceptable to make the online version available on campus within the Lincoln University community.

The abstract may be made open access.

[Permission request sought by Dayle Kerr after a phone conversation with Philip on 27 Apr 2010]
