Tourism and Recreation in New Zealand’s Natural Environment: A Bibliography and Research Synthesis
Tourism and Recreation in New Zealand’s Natural Environment: A Bibliography and Research Synthesis

Prepared by
Kay Booth and Michael Mackay

Prepared for the Ministry of Tourism
Wellington

March 2007
8.0 Bibliography (Thematic Format)

1. Access ................................................................. 34
2. Adventure Tourism .................................................. 35
3. Aircraft .............................................................. 35
4. Bibliographies and Literature Reviews ........................................ 36
5. Boating ............................................................. 37
6. Caves ............................................................... 38
7. Facilities and Services ................................................ 39
8. Hunting and Fishing ...................................................... 40
9. Impacts (General) ...................................................... 41
10. Impacts (Environmental) ............................................. 41
11. Impacts (Social) ....................................................... 46
    11.1 General ......................................................... 46
    11.2 Community .................................................... 46
    11.3 Conflict and Crowding ........................................ 48
    11.4 Displacement .................................................. 50
    11.5 Noise ........................................................... 50
12. Interpretation .......................................................... 51
13. Management, Policy and Planning ...................................... 52
14. Marine Tourism ..................................................... 56
15. Methods and Research Tools ......................................... 59
16. Mountains and Ski-fields ............................................. 61
17. Protected Natural Areas ............................................... 62
18. Rivers and Lakes ..................................................... 72
19. Safety and Risk ....................................................... 74
20. Sub-Antarctic Islands .................................................. 75
21. Tourism/Environment General ........................................ 75
22. Visitor Characteristics and Experience .................................. 77
23. Walkways, Tracks and Trails ........................................... 82
24. Wildlife ................................................................... 84
    24.1 Wildlife Tourism (General) .................................... 84
    24.2 Marine Mammals (General) .................................... 84
    24.3 Dolphins .......................................................... 85
    24.4 Whales ............................................................ 86
    24.5 Penguins .......................................................... 87
    24.6 Albatross .......................................................... 87
    24.7 Fur Seals ........................................................... 88
    24.8 White Heron ....................................................... 88
    24.9 Kea ................................................................. 88
1. Access

34

2. Adventure Tourism

3. Aircraft

4. Bibliographies and Literature Reviews

5. Boating

6. Caves

7. Facilities and Services

8. Hunting and Fishing

9. Impacts (General)

10. Impacts (Environmental)

requirements for the degree of Bachelor of Parks, Recreation and Tourism Management at Lincoln University, Canterbury, New Zealand.

63. Orams, M. (2005). Dolphins, whales and ecotourism in New Zealand: what are the impacts and how should the industry be managed? In C. M. Hall and S. Boyd (Eds.), Tourism and Nature-Based Tourism in Peripheral Areas: Development or Disaster (pp. 231-245). Clevedon: Channelview Publications.

11. Impacts (Social)

11.1 General

11.2 Community
11.3 Conflict and Crowding

11.4 Displacement

11.5 Noise

12. Interpretation

13. Management, Policy and Planning

63. Orms, M. (2005). Dolphins, whales and ecotourism in New Zealand: what are the impacts and how should the industry be managed? In C. M. Hall and S. Boyd (Eds.), Tourism and Nature-Based Tourism in Peripheral Areas: Development or Disaster (pp. 231-245). Clevedon: Channelview Publications.

14. Marine Tourism

34. Lusseau, D. (2003). Male and female bottlenose dolphins (Tursiops spp.) have different strategies to avoid interactions with tour boats in Doubtful Sound, New Zealand. Marine Ecology Progress Series, 257, 267-274.

56. Orams, M. (2005). Dolphins, whales and ecotourism in New Zealand: what are the impacts and how should the industry be managed? In C. M. Hall and S. Boyd (Eds.), Tourism and Nature-Based Tourism in Peripheral Areas: Development or Disaster (pp. 231-245). Clevedon: Channelview Publications.

15. Methods and Research Tools

16. Mountains and Ski-fields

17. Protected Natural Areas

18. Rivers and Lakes

19. Safety and Risk

20. Sub-Antarctic Islands

21. Tourism/Environment General

22. Visitor Characteristics and Experience

24. Cooley, N. (2002). Visitor perception of their Tuatapere Hump Ridge experience. A research project submitted in partial fulfilment of the requirements for a Diploma in Environmental Management at Southland Institute of Technology (SIT), Invercargill, New Zealand.

25. Cooke, W. (2002). Tawharanui Regional Park open sanctuary visitor survey: a study of visitor characteristics, their knowledge of and attitudes towards the proposed open sanctuary. A thesis presented in partial fulfilment of the requirements of the degree of Master of Management at Massey University, Palmerston North, New Zealand.

34. Finnigan, S. (1999). Visitor’s perceptions of the Rakiura Track and North West Circuit on Stewart Island. A dissertation submitted for the partial fulfilment of the Postgraduate Diploma in Tourism at the University of Otago, Dunedin, New Zealand.

23. Walkways, Tracks and Trails

24. Wildlife

24.1 Wildlife Tourism (General)

24.2 Marine Mammals (General)
24.3 Dolphins

24.4 Whales

86

24.5 Penguins

24.6 Albatross
24.7 Fur Seals

24.8 White Heron

24.9 Kea
9.0 Bibliography (Author Format)

A

B

G

Tourism Down Under: A Tourism Research Conference (pp. 505-529), 6-9 December 1994, Department of Management Systems, Massey University, Palmerston North, New Zealand.

305. Hurst, R. (1997). Tourism and environmental cognition: an investigation on the influence of the physical setting on tourists learning. A dissertation submitted for the partial fulfilment of the Postgraduate Diploma in Tourism at the University of Otago, Dunedin, New Zealand.

308. Isles, J. (1994). Funding of visitor facilities and services in natural areas: a New Zealand comparison. Ernst and Young.

106

373. Litten, R. J. (1992). Opportunities and threats to the development of commercial mountain biking operations in New Zealand's adventure tourism industry. A dissertation submitted for the partial fulfilment of the Postgraduate Diploma in Tourism at the University of Otago, Dunedin, New Zealand.

400. Mann, A. (2005). A pre-disturbance study of Hector's Dolphins (Cephalorhynchus hector) prior to a dolphin-watching operation at Motunau, New Zealand. A thesis submitted in partial fulfilment of the requirements for the degree of Master of Science at the University of Otago, Dunedin, New Zealand.

406. Martinez, E. (2004). A pre-disturbance study of Hector’s Dolphins (Cephalorhynchus hector) prior to a dolphin-watching operation at Motunau, New Zealand. A thesis submitted in partial fulfilment of the requirements for the degree of Master of Science at the University of Otago, Dunedin, New Zealand.

O

466. Orams, M. (2005). Dolphins, whales and ecotourism in New Zealand: what are the impacts and how should the industry be managed? In C. M. Hall and S. Boyd (Eds.), Tourism and Nature-Based Tourism in Peripheral Areas: Development or Disaster (pp. 231-245). Clevedon: Channelview Publications.

S

117

119

X, Y, Z
